

Defence heritage services

GML Heritage continues to be trusted by the Australian government to supply heritage services and advice across Australian Defence bases to support the protection of national interests.

Our portfolio of advice for Defence's significant heritage services spans over 25 years. During this time, we have demonstrated our capability and capacity to deliver operationally astute and pragmatic heritage services under the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999 (EPBC Act).

GML is a consultant member of the Defence Infrastructure Panel—Environment, Heritage and Estate Engineering (DIP-EHEE), with a highly regarded reputation for delivering strategic advice to Defence and their contractors for heritage conservation and management.

GML's expertise includes effective engagement with First Nations communities, and covers all heritage environments—natural, Indigenous and historic. Our team of technical heritage specialists based in Canberra, Melbourne and Sydney are architects, archaeologists, cultural landscape and interpretation experts. Our team is committed to shaping new futures for Australia's heritage and are proud to support Defence and other Commonwealth agencies across their significant portfolio of heritage places.
